New Red Drive On Lake Ilmen

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP)—Russian troops pursuing a badly-disorganized German army over a large sector west of the Horyn river beyond Sarny have driven within 70 miles of the big communications base of Kovel (in old Poland), front dispatches declared today.

To the north, a White Russian army offensive battering into the Pripet marshes toward Pinsk, 115 miles away, has smashed the backbone of Nazi defenses, Red Star asserted, and Gen. Rokossovsky's troops are pouring through the broken enemy line.

(The German high command announced Russian forces had launched a new offensive "north of Lake Ilmen," London dispatches stated. Lake Ilmen is 170 miles south of Leningrad on the long-dormant northern front. The announcement was not confirmed by the Russians.

(The German communique said the Russians were attacking also with "major forces" in the Oranienbaum sector, the Gulf of Finland, 20 miles west of Leningrad, and northwest and north of Nevel as well as north of Lake Ilmen. Nevel is 300 miles below Leningrad, indicating the Russians may have gone over to the offensive at several points along the 300 miles of the Far Northern front.)

The Army newspaper said the German high command vainly had ordered a line held between the Sluch and Horyn rivers, but Gen. Vatutin's Ukrainian forces battered through and the Germans probably will attempt another stand on the Styr river 25 to 35 miles west of the Horyn, or between the Styr and Stochod river, only 20 miles east of Kovel.

Soviet units that seized Stepan 18 miles southwest of Sarny were driving behind Rovno, 35 miles south, which was reported badly outflanked.

Rokossovsky's five-day-old offensive hammered into the Pripet marshes on a 30-mile front beyond fallen Mozyr and Kalinkovichi with extraordinary artillery support after breaking one of the strongest lines the enemy has yet established.

In one seven-mile sector the Germans had built in depth defenses of four trenches, 27 artillery points, 37 heavy machine-gun nests, and many mortars and mines.

Red Star said Soviet troops had crossed the Ippa river 13 miles west of Kalinkovichi, and ski troops and cavalry dashed after the Germans and raided rear areas. Swift cavalry strokes through the swamps surprised Nazi garrisons, it added, and Nazi soldiers hopped out of windows in their underwear.

RUSSIA—Long quiet northern front in the (1) Lake Ilmen sector today was reported ablaze with Soviet action as Reds roll back Nazis through Mozyr in drive toward Pinsk in the (2) Sarny region . . . while other Russian forces pushed toward Bessarabia in the (3) south.

Yanks Rip Last Bar to Cassino

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 15 (AP)—French troops, staving off five German counterattacks in fierce fighting on the right wing of the Fifth Army front in Italy, have pushed forward two more miles toward Cassino, it was announced today, capturing the village of Acquafondata and three important heights in the vicinity.

The advance of the French put the Allies in a commanding position on heights entirely surrounding the village of Viticuso, which now apparently is in Allied control.

British heavy guns were active in both the Fifth and Eighth Army sectors.

American forces to the south and west of Cassino have plowed into strong enemy fortifications on Mt. Trocchio, last big physical barrier on the road to Cassino, and were engaged in hard fighting. The Germans have covered the slopes of the mountain with mortars and machinegun nests requiring slow, determined effort to root them out.

Extensive patrol activity continued on the Eighth Army front and one scouting detachment plunged into enemy lines south of Civitella, beyond Cassoli, and became involved in a sharp skirmish.

Allied bombers attacked the Mostar airfield and the Sibenik area in Yugoslavia.

Medium bombers attacked a railway bridge at Pontecorvo in the Cassino area, while other planes blasted gun positions at Sant'Elia and San Guiseppe. Hits were scored on the port of Anzio, southwest of Rome.

Five Allied planes were reported missing against four enemy aircraft destroyed.

Huge RAF Raid Gives K.O. Blow To Brunswick

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—RAF heavy bombers blasted Brunswick, airplane manufacturing city in central Germany, with 2000 long tons of bombs last night in 23 minutes, setting a new record for bomb concentration of 87 tons a minute.

This heavy follow-up to Tuesday's daylight onslaught by American heavyweights was delivered as Mosquito bombers returned again to assault Berlin and other planes hit the industrial city of Magdeburg to the southwest and targets in northern France. Thirty-eight planes were lost in the operations.

The concentration on Brunswick exceeded the previous record of 83 1-3 tons a minute attained in the 2500-ton raid on Hanover Sept. 22.

AMERICANS' BIG ATTACK

The overnight blow at Nazi defense fighters swung the Allied aerial offensive into a round-the-clock attack again, following by only a few hours a day-long assault on military targets in northern France by strong formations of American Liberators and Fortresses, medium Marauders and Allied medium and light bombers, fighter-bombers and swarms of fighters.

Nine enemy craft were destroyed in the daylight raids by the American heavy bombers, and 18 more by their fighter escorts and by Allied medium bombers and escorts. Allied losses in yesterday's daylight operations were 16 planes, three of them heavies.

Yesterday's daylight attacks against the so-called "rocket-gun coast" called into action in the neighborhood of 1400 Allied planes. Last night's twin blows by the heavy bombers and the Mosquitos made the fourth notable United Nations air assault against the Germans in 24 hours.

RUSSIANS JOIN RAIDS

One hundred Russian bombers entered the assault yesterday, attacking a German Black sea convoy, and far-ranging RAF planes swooped down on more Nazi shipping off Norway, torpedoing two vessels.

Brunswick, a city of 200,000, which is 100 miles west of Berlin, was last hit by the RAF's night raiders on Sept. 27. Its airplane works and plants turning out artillery, motorcycles, tractors and railway equipment were targets of the powerful Tuesday assault by American bombers which also carried the heavy craft over Oschersleben, Halberstadt, Bielefeld and [illegible]ppen.

RAF and Canadian fliers returning from another "miracle" cloud-bombing job said Brunswick resembled a "city that wasn't blacked out," because of the many fires left raging.

BORNEO, CHAIN OF JAP BASES LASHED

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 15 (AP)—Japanese tropical island bases in an almost unbroken chain of 3000 miles from Borneo to Bougainville were listed today as having felt bombs and bullets from far-ranging Allied planes.

Flying more than 1000 miles northwest of Australia, Liberators set ablaze a cracking plant at the Balikpapan Oil Refinery on Borneo. On Celebes, the Wilhelmina wharf area was blasted.

Southeast of there, Liberators started fires in the harbor town of Dili on Portuguese Timor. Northeastward, on Ceram, explosions rocked Amahai airdrome and Geser village.

On nearby Dutch New Guinea, four-engined bombers attacked Keaukwa village. Midway along New Guinea's north coast, a night patrolling Navy Catalina damaged a small Japanese cargo ship.

Closer to the northeastern New Guinea jungle front, Liberators screened by P-38s dropped 75 tons of bombs on Alexishafen.

Hitler Uses 2 Secret Weapons

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 15 (AP)—Last night's heavy RAF assault on Brunswick forced the Nazis again to put up their secret rocket-propelled fighter planes which they uncovered for the first time in Tuesday's historic American assault, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Aftonbladet said today.

The Nazi rocket-propelled type is similar to the newly-announced Allied jet-plane, but driven from the rear by explosive fuel instead of from air sucked in from the front and then superheated and supercompressed almost to the explosive point as in the Allied type.

The rocket power was said by the correspondent to enable the new Nazi fighter to climb four and a half miles in two minutes, instead of the usual 15 minutes.

However, only top-notch pilots were said to be able to withstand the sudden change of pressure experienced in the climb, which was described as more terrific than that undergone by dive-bomber pilots.

It was reported also the Nazis are building a new type of automatic machine - gun which continues to fire on the target after the gunner is killed or wounded. It was described as having a rate of fire much faster than anything now used.

Stravinsky Shocks Hub In Star Spangled Twist

The talk of the town today was Igor Stravinsky's new, strange-sounding version of "The Star Spangled Banner," which thousands of radio listeners are in hopes of hearing tonight when the Boston Symphony Orchestra gives a repeat performance over Station WHDH and the NBC Blue Network at 8:30.

Music lovers, filling Symphony Hall to capacity to hear an "All-Stravinsky" program conducted by the Russian-born composer yesterday afternoon, were stunned into bewildered silence soon after they had risen to sing the National Anthem, traditional wartime concert opener.

VOICES FALTER

Only a few of the first bars had been played when voices began to falter, eyebrows lifted and nearly everybody stopped singing, to let the orchestra finish alone its dissonant rendition of the well-known music.

Igor Stravinsky

Excited comment and a buzz of conversation swept the hall when the strains ended, leaving most of the listeners trying to recall any of the familiar phrases of the song.

Stravinsky, hailed by many critics as the world's greatest living composer, explained earlier that he completed his harmonization of "The Star Spangled Banner" two years ago on the Fourth of July, as an expression of gratitude for the peace and opportunity he had found in America.

SOUNDS LIKE HYMN

He said he retained the melody—changing it slightly to fit the voice range better—but introduced different harmonies to suggest Puritan times, with chords in the old contrapuntal style. The orchestra's sound at times was powerful, rich and full, more like a church hymn than a warlike tune.

However, few persons found the hymn "singable." It contained too much of the odd music responsible for the racket accompanying the earthquakes and creeping dinosaurs in "The Rite of Spring," featured in Walt Disney's "Fantasia."

Another near-sensation was caused by Stravinsky during the concert when he responded to the audience's enthusiasm over his first performance of the "Circus Polka" by repeating this number. It marked the third time since the Boston Symphony was founded in 1885 that the orchestra had played an encore.

Oldest of Nine Saugus Orphans Held as Firebug

More misfortune was added to the already heavy burden of woe heaped on nine Saugus children, orphaned by the death of both parents shortly before Christmas, when Richard Roberts, 17, oldest of the brood, was held for the grand jury today charged with arson.

Richard pleaded innocent in Lynn court and Judge Ralph W. Reeve ordered him held in bonds of $5000.

Richard was arrested by Saugus police after firemen battled two fires in the orphans' home, Seagirt ave., on consecutive days. He has been the sole support of his eight brothers and sisters.

Police Lieut. Roland E. Mansfield said Richard confessed to setting the fires in hopes of getting more publicity for the family.

Mansfield told Judge Reeve the boy admitted he thought publicity on the fires would result in more donations from kind - hearted neighbors and newspaper readers who had gone to the orphans' assistance when stories of their parents' deaths were published.

Richard was also said by police to have admitted setting three fires in the Vamp building, Broad st., Lynn, last year.

Hub Man's Plan To Punish Hitler

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Jan. 15 (AP)—Suggestions in the Hattiesburg American's what-to-do-with-Hitler contest included this one from a Boston, Mass., citizen:

Then Hitler would be made to explain in "plain language" what he had read, in a day-to-day report for the remainder of his life.

Lake Dines In Big Camp

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—Tonight your travel-calloused pilgrim is in a small-town English tavern of the pre-Dickens period—his temporary GHQ, while tracking down Boston and New England GIs. The home-bred soldiers are plentiful around this holly and mistletoe country, their bases fanning outward from the ancient town, as spokes from a wheel-hub, and living amid a picture postcard setting that bespeaks Robin Goodfellow and David Copperfield. It is here, as in many other secret sections of England, that our soldiers are polishing off a postgraduate course in the lethal arts, a final prelude to the real thing.

That I have not ferreted out any New Englanders yet—for, contrary to the policy of 1918, they are sprinkled helter-skelter through the armed forces as from a celestial salt shaker—is because I arrived here in early evening, and no stranger, even one in U. S. uniform, just wanders into a cantonment of Nisson huts and raps on the first door. No, sir! You curtsey to the C. O. first, and ask his blessing—that is, if you don't want to risk having an elongated breadknife stuck in your gullet. These men are in deadly earnest.

There was an Army jeep with a closely-zippered top at the station, and a PRO Colonel (they have Washington's alphabetical habit here, too) standing on the damp flagging—a woolen reefer round his throat, and heavily upholstered against the rheumatic climate.

COL. RICHARDS VIDMER
Gets Lake Room in "Ritz"

For schooling, for war in this hemisphere is not only a matter of mastering weapons and tactics; it is a question of getting the men inured to an alien weather which might otherwise corrode the joint and grow barnacles on the tongue.

Our Boys Keep Warm

So when you see Americans hereabouts you see them bulky in three-ply underwear, flannel lined galoshes, knit O. D. cap, mufflers and windproofs—like college alumni at November football games. And they have G. I. stoves in their huts, in contrast with the British civilians who have virtually no heat at all—not even the pre-war soft coal grates, which sent off asphixiating fumes and cooked you in front while you froze behind. Coal is virtually a military monopoly, so chilblains are the rule.

The waiting Colonel was none other than Richards Vidmer, the ex-New York sport columnist, and former night club dilletante, who is attached to this base as an official greeter and press chaperone. Richards—the plural "s" was christened there—used to be the beau geste of the World Series press box. His pomaded scalp and tailored elegance were fabled fixtures at ringside, and his Vanity Fair profile among the haute monde of the horse world. Or you would find Richards nightly at the Stork Club or Casa Manana, striking a Hollywood posture, and sipping something out of a frosted glass. On pre-war Broadway, Richards was of that madcap genus known as Cafe Society.

And look at him now! He's the dead spit of a boss longshoreman on the Atlantic ave. freight docks—boney, bulky, grizzled and grim.

"Hi-ya pal," said Richards with the negligence of one who had lunched with you only that p. m. in a Times Square winestube. "We got you a room in the local Ritz."

Where Room Is Roomy

Make no mistake, I'm not complaining—the visitor to wartime Britain expects to take potluck. But your word painter is obliged to report that the L. R. is a fog-Crimean war elegance, with horsehair furniture and cavernous halls, where there were soft, mysterious

Vote Set for Monday On $700 Veterans' Bill

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—Capital political leaders today predicted that a liberal mustering-out pay bill will be enacted into law by both the Senate and House before next weekend.

House passage of a bill providing maximum payment to discharged servicemen of World War II, probably close to $700, is expected to take place Monday following debate on the bill reported out by the House Military Affairs Committee.

This bill recommends only $300 and it is virtually assured that the figure, widely criticized as disgraceful, will be increased generously.

After House action, the bill will go before a conference committee of both branches of Congress. The session is expected to take place about the middle of next week, with final enactment to follow as speedily as the group can complete a draft in final form.

HUNT JOINS FIGHT

Meanwhile two more Boston and Massachusetts leaders joined the ranks of petitioning Congress to spare nothing to make the veteran feel his stretch in the service of his country has not been forgotten.

In a telegram to Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., House minority leader, Jarvis Hunt, president of the Massachusetts Senate, urged:

"Please support legislation that will immediately provide mustering-out pay, clothing and hospitalization facilities for discharged veterans of World War II."

John E. Kerrigan, president of the Boston City Council and a veteran of this war, was another who sent a plea to both Martin and Rep. John W. McCormack, House majority leader. The telegram read:

SETS MINIMUM

"Immediate passage of an adequate mustering-out pay bill will assure the veteran that he will be able financially to bridge the gap from military to civilian life. This legislation is a measure of simple justice and should not be regarded in any other light. One year's pay, either in a lump sum or a substantial amount, immediately and the balance in monthly payments should be the minimum amount."

Meanwhile, Rep. William Lemke of North Dakota and a score of other House members began a week-end campaign to convince their colleagues that the fairest way to reward the veteran would be passage of a bill providing $100 on discharge and $50 a month for a full year thereafter for all who have more than nine months, with minimum payment of $250 for those in the service less than three months.

URGES FAIR TREATMENT

Among those who have urged on the floor of the House a liberal bill is Rep. Thomas Rolph of California. In suggesting a $700 maximum, Rolph said:

"Our fellow Americans who have so loyally served our country are entitled to fair treatment. Each should receive $100 as mustering-out pay. Each should receive in addition various amounts based on length of service, the maximum to equal a soldier's yearly pay. These allotments would range from a minimum of $250 to a maximum of $700.

"Why be parsimonious with our own? We are open-handed with peoples and nations everywhere. Let us show due appreciation to the veterans. Sentiment in my district is strongly for a square deal."

NAZI-JAP PLOT IN PERU BLOCKED

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Peruvian government announced today a number of conspirators, including Germans and Japanese, plotting a New Year's pro-Nazi coup had been detained and would be deported, while others had been notified to leave the country.

The government charged the conspirators had staged anti-Jewish outbreaks on the day before New Year's, planning to cloak their subversive activities in the subsequent disorder.

This apparently explained reports disturbances had also occurred in southern Peru.

A government statement said that aliens in the country had gone "so far as to try and join other elements trying to establish anti-Democratic regimes in certain American countries."

The statement added that "confidential data received from abroad which was spontaneously made known to us" indicated "quite a concrete, detailed plan was prepared for disturbances that would break out on the afternoon of Dec 31, 1943, following the well-known Nazi system of simulating popular outbreaks and attacks on shops owned by Jews."

The government added that subversive elements had "tried to start disorders in Lima and other provincial capitals and therefore their followers launched the rumor that disorders had occurred in southern Peru."

BABY'S CRIES SAVE FAMILY FROM FLAMES

The cries of a year-old baby saved both his own life and that of his older brother when flames broke out in the bungalow home of Mrs. Cecile Grosso, 24, of Sylvia st., Arlington Heights.

Kennedy Visits Son; Scores Tax Puzzle

Federal income tax blanks are so intricate and confusing they are a "muddled mess," even to experts, Joseph P. Kennedy, former U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, declared on arrival here from Florida.

Kennedy came to Boston by plane to visit his son, Robert, 17, at Milton Academy. The former diplomat refused to break his three-year-silence on politics, although he veered close to it by alluding to "government leaders" in his criticism of the income tax forms.

Joseph P. Kennedy

He was mum on President Roosevelt's new tax program. With reference to postwar planning he said:

"Nothing concerning the future of business or industrial enterprise can be determined until the government's over-all policy has been made known."

"Business leaders have been unable to understand it," Kennedy said of the tax blank, "and even tax experts are not in full agreement as to what should be deducted and what paid.

"It is no wonder that people become confused and lose faith in their government leaders when they are presented with such a muddled mess as this present income tax form. It is confusing even to the persons of unusual intelligence and financial experience, and I can't imagine the average wage earner figuring out the answers."

The former ambassador said that after his Boston visit he will go to his winter home at Palm Beach, Fla., where his son, Lieut. John F. Kennedy, is due to arrive shortly on leave, after the PT boat he skippered in the South Pacific was cut in two by a Jap destroyer.

Own Gun Wounds Hero Ship Gunner

Joseph George Donovan, 19, seaman 2d class, of Marlboro, stuck manfully to his 20 mm. gun when Stuka dive bombers attacked his ship off Palermo and he threw more hot steel off Palermo—but his only wound came from his own gun.

Postwar Military Training, Knox Aim

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15 (AP)—To make certain "that our individual liberties will be preserved," Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox advocated one year's compulsory military training "for every boy, when he attains the age of 17 or 18."

"There is no safety or peace in unpreparedness," the cabinet officer told the Cleveland Boy Scout Council's annual banquet in a prepared address.

"The unspeakable folly of the theory that we are more likely to resort to war, or become involved in war, because we are reasonably prepared against the danger of war, has been made so plain that few will be found to deny it.

WILL INSURE LIBERTIES

"Therefore, I believe thoroughly that one of the best measures we can take to insure that our individual liberties will be preserved and that free Americans will remain free, is to require that every boy, when he attains the age of 17 or 18, shall be required to spend at least one year in training on land, or at sea, against the possibility that sometime . . . his services may be required to help protect the country."

Citing 25 per cent rejections by the Marine Corps for physical reasons, Secretary Knox asserted "we must in the future spend more time, thought and money in improving the physical qualities of our people."

WOULD EXEMPT NONE

Knox asserted such a system of training is in harmony with the democratic ideal.

"No one should be exempt," he said, "rich and poor, boys from the city and boys from the farm, boys of all races and religions, all should be made to shoulder a common responsibility of personal preparedness as a shield for the future security of our country."

3 Hurt in Malden Bus-Auto Crash

Three persons were injured today when an automobile was in collision with a Boston Elevated trackless trolley bus at Salem and Bryant sts., Malden.

William Robinson, 34, of Belmont pk., Everett, driver of the auto, reported shock and injuries to both knees; Paul Ryder, 26, of Milton st., Malden, an occupant of the auto, lacerated nose and internal injuries, and Miss Dorothy Gaudette, 27, of Salem st., Malden, a bus passenger, complained of back and side injuries.

Herbert Carpenter of Summer st., Somerville, drove the bus.

Church Fund Trustee Ordered Disbarred

John Winslow Hathaway, 66, of North Wilmington, for 43 years a Boston lawyer, has been disbarred by Judge Arthur W. Dolan of the Supreme Court in action brought by the Boston Bar Ass'n in the misappropriation of $30,000 from funds of the Church of the New Jerusalem, Boston. Restitution of $7000 was made, it was stated.

Whole Nation Flies Plasma To Texas Boy

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 15—Precious blood plasma, some of it from points as far away as Boston, was being rushed here by plane today for 4-year-old Billy Meers, who must have a constant supply if he is to win his game battle against dropsy.

Twenty units of plasma are expected here by plane today from Boston City Hospital. The blood bank at Baylor Hospital here, where Billy is being treated, has given him more than 200 pints and its supply has been reduced to an unsafe level. Physicians have been notified in addition to the plasma on the way from Boston, volunteers there may contribut 130 more pints.

At Chanute Field, Ill., 200 soldiers and WACs have volunteered to donate blood to Billy. From Louisiana came offers of 300 pints. Sympathetic adults throughout the country notified the hospital here they would donate blood to the little boy. Bridgeport and Waterbury, Ct., residents were among them.

Billy's physician, Dr. Charles B. Shuey, said: "At the present stage of the disease he can go three weeks without a transfusion. We can use every drop we can get, however. The more life we pour into his veins the more sparkle there is in his eye."

Medford Dog Saves 5 in Fire

A little pet spaniel named Sparky belonging to the Scali family, Chester ave., Medford, proved he was aptly-named today.

"Sparky" detected sparks and flames today and barked so loudly the family was aroused in time to flee to the street and escape the fire which broke out in their home. Those who fled to safety were, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Scali, a son Joseph, a daughter, Mrs. Rose M. Sarno and her baby.

Firemen said the blaze started from a cigarette tossed into a baby carriage in the cellar. Damage was estimated at $1500.

2 P-T Boats Fight 30 Jap Planes, Down 4

By MURLIN SPENCER

ADVANCED NAVAL BASE, New Guinea, Jan. 10 (delayed) (AP)—Tokyo reported 30 of the emperor's divebombers had destroyed two P-T boats, but Tokyo was wrong.

The P-Ts came home after battling the planes to a standstill for 40 minutes in one of the most daring exploits of the war in this area. What's more, they shot down four planes which were seen to crash in the water.

The P-Ts were on a hunt for barges in enemy territory between Arawe and Gasmata. They started for home at 9 a. m.

"A whole batch of planes coming from the northeast," reported a helmsman.

BAY STATE GUNNER

First bombs struck just off the bow of one boat, almost swamping it. The P-Ts leaped full speed ahead while every gun was blaing.

William Barry, 58 Willow st., Lawrence, Mass., was one of the gunners firing steadily.

Barry on the stern gun waited almost until he could plainly see the pilot before firing, and when one came close he scored. The Japanese plane crashed into the water.

Two other gunners accounted for a second. Edward Barton, Dover, N. H., knocked one out of the sky, while other gunners on his boat got the fourth.

The gunners, with what seemed to be the entire Jap airforce attacking, could have hit the deck but they stood exposed by their guns.

BEAUTIFUL SHOOTING

Said one skipper: "They were almost too brazen standing up shouting 'lookit that —!' every time a Jap plane went down.

"They did such a beautiful job of shooting that they forced the Nips who first came at us from 300 to 500 feet to altitudes of a thousand or over where they couldn't hit anything."

P-T men believe they got the flight leader in the first plane shot down because he took to his parachute and floated down to the water with the other planes covering his descent.

After that, the enemy wasn't so eager.

Other men in the fight included William O'Connell, 20 Cargill ave., Worcester, Mass., and Michael Bloom, Saugus, Mass.

Beauty

Cover Girl Reveals Charm Tricks

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

COVER GIRL ANITA COLBY not only is one of the nation's top-flight beauties . . . but she practices beauty in her daily routine . . . Exquisite coloring . . . enhanced by creams and the "right" makeup . . . is one of her most precious possessions. One has to pamper beauty to keep it, she says knowingly.

EVEN THE BEAUTIES use beauty tricks. Cover Girl Anita Colby . . . one of the loveliest of them all . . . with her blonde tresses framing a cameo-like face of light, bronze-glow complexion . . . 'fesses up truthfully that SHE resorts to beauty tricks to enhance her natural charms.

One of her specialties is to sit for hours before a mirror . . . leisurely and playfully . . . toying with facial expressions, lipsticks, and a collection of creams and oils and other beauty aids.

She just loves to fool with a lipstick . . . painting all kinds of mouths . . . until she gets just the mouth which suits her mood and manner of the moment. Like an artist . . . who tosses away countless canvas efforts until he achieves the ultimate "best," Miss Colby shapes and reshapes her mouth for the most flattering effect.

"Women should do more of this," she told me. "Women should devote such playtime to playing with beauty aids. The old adage . . . that practice makes perfect . . . is just as true of beauty practice. And, when a woman reaches a peak of typical loveliness, it is amazing the amount of confidence she derives . . . a confidence which transmits itself to the illusion she has created.

"Girls may be gifted with beauty . . . but they have to work at it to keep it. Cover girls know this very well. They know that unless they retain their loveliness . . . they are apt to lose their coveted top-rung position in the beauty world."

For after-work weariness and fatigue, Miss Colby has a unique trick . . . a health pickup . . . which she says does wonders for her.

RENEWED ALERTNESS YOUR REWARD

"This little trick brings a blush to my cheeks and a renewed alertness. I take an ironing board, place it flat on the floor, with one end tilted up about a foot. Then, I lie flat on my back with my head on the lower end. In this way, circulation is stimulated and a resulting relaxation is obtained. Many of the Cover Girls use this trick after a day's hard work.

"Cover Girls are most particular about their eyes. I have always felt a woman's eyes are her best asset. They should be cultivated if you get what I mean . . . made to glisten with personality expression. If one is the soulful type . . . then her eyes should be deep and restful . . . On the other hand . . . if she is of the south-of-the-border type . . . an olive-skinned Latin beauty . . . her eyes should be dark and gleaming and flashing with allure. When a girl improves her eyes, she improves her face.

"Beauty has its tricks and it is up to women to know how to use them. Cover Girls don't always wear what is the vogue. They wear what is most becoming to them . . . and many times create a new vogue. A woman's beauty and her dress should always be achieved for masculine appraisal and appreciation.

"A woman's beauty has nothing to do with her age. If she follows beauty advice, her skin and face can be ageless."

Fashion

PLAYTIME OR SUN-TIME . . . this is the type of shorts Hollywood glamor gals prefer for leisure moments. This stunning type . . . worn by M-G-M Star Susan Peters . . . is an attractive favorite . . . flattering to the figure and trimly youthful. The candy-striped, zipped up the front, high-necked blouse is a fetching complement to the large-pocketed shorts. Note how Miss Peters makes use of the beltline for the handkerchief bandana which can easily be withdrawn and used for the head. R. M.

Smart Set Hints of Spring

By BETTY ALDEN

THE WEATHER man to the contrary there was a hint of spring in the gay accessories fashionable music lovers wore with their furs at yesterday's Symphony Luncheon at the Copley Plaza. Mrs. Hugh Ogden, sharing a table for two with her daughter, Mrs. William Marlowe, was as gay as the first robin in her red outfit and Mrs George Hawley, one of our leading music patrons, wore a fuchsia feather hat and corsage of pink carmellias with her broadtail cape.

Definitely a conversation piece was the striking scarf which Mrs. Robert Parker wore to brighten her mink. It was fashioned of navy and yellow stripped taffeta and tied under her chin in a huge cat's whisker bow. Rebekah Hobbs, lunching with Mr. and Mrs. Boris Goldovsky, wore a stunning gold wool dress with matching feather toque and others were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Vincent Pinkham, Mrs. Franklin Hobbs, Mrs. R. B. Earling of Fairbanks, Alaska, who was greeting several of her former Smith College classmates, Mrs. Horace Binney and Mr. Henry Clifford who shared a ring-side table with his daughter, Miss Gretchen Clifford.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT RUSSELL MUMFORD of Bogota, N. J., formerly of Boston, announce the marriage of their daughter, Edith Lois Mumford, to Capt. David William Bensley, USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernis Bensley of Alden, N. Y. The wedding was at the Little Church Around the Corner yesterday afternoon.

The bride, who graduated from Wellesley last June, wore sea blue crepe with net yoke edged with beading, a matching veiled hat and carried a blue prayer book which was a gift from her father. Her sister, Anita Rose, a junior at Wellesley, was maid of honor and Lieut. Robert J. Henricks, a pilot in the bridegroom's bombardment squadron, was best man. A dinner and reception followed at the Pennsylvania Hotel. Capt. Bensley, on leave after 15 months in the Mediterranean area, reports for reassignment after a short wedding trip.

Proper Paper

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband died recently, and I am wearing deep mourning clothes. Should I use mourning letter-paper. R. W. P.

Although it is permissible for you to use white paper with a very narrow border, if you especially wish to, I suggest you use plain white letter-paper. Nowadays most people in mourning prefer to use white letter-paper rather than the rather lugubrious-looking black-border paper.

Snacks With Rich Flavor

By MARTHA LEE

THREE meals a day—365 days in the year! That's a lot of meals, but it's what the average homemaker serves her family. Serving tasty, attractive meals every day is a problem any time, and putting flavor into rationed meals can be a process to add wrinkles to many a brow.

One suggestion we have for adding seasoning and zip to menus is the use of rich brown prepared mustard. The ways in which it can be combined with other foods to make tangy spreads for lunchbox sandwiches, luncheon and dinner rolls, and pick-up snacks are almost endless.

COTTAGE CHEESE SPREAD

8 tbsp. cottage cheese
1 tbsp. prepared mustard
1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
Pepper and salt to taste

Mix well. Makes two sandwiches. Try it on dark bread for a change. It makes a super sandwich.

CHOPPED EGG WITH MUSTARD

2 hard-boiled eggs
1 tbsp. mayonnaise
1 tbsp. prepared mustard
1 tbsp. chopped pimiento
Salt and pepper to taste

Chop the egg and add other ingredients. Mix well. Makes two sandwiches. Try this on a large dinner roll split in three slices instead of two. Give the rolls two layers of spread this way.

Fried chicken, roast chicken, fricassee or what have you. Here's another suggestion, and we know you'll like your leftover chicken this way, too.

GROUND CHICKEN WITH MUSTARD

½ cup ground chicken
1 tbsp. mayonnaise
2 tsp. prepared mustard
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix well. Makes two sandwiches.

If your family is decidedly "difficult" about liver, here's an extra good way of getting it into the menu. Just serve it in a mustard seasoned sandwich — and before you can say "mustard" they'll be asking for more.

LIVER PATE

¼ lb. beef liver
2 tbsp. mayonnaise
½ tsp. prepared mustard
Pepper and salt to taste
½ small chopped onion

Place the liver in enough salted water to cover it. Simmer slowly for 5 minutes, until tender. Cool and put through grinder. Makes a half cup approximately of ground liver. Add mayonnaise, mustard, chopped onion and season to taste. Mix well to a paste. Makes enough pate for two good man-sized sandwiches.

PEANUT BUTTER SPREAD

3 tbsp. peanut butter
1 tsp. prepared mustard

Mix well. Enough spread for two sandwiches.

The girls in the family will enjoy this spread by itself—but the men may prefer a double-decker. Make one layer of the spread, and on the upper deck put a slice of cheese. Use pumpernickel or rye bread occasionally.

Martin Pattern

Look slim as a willow in this pretty princess frock Pattern 9041. Use a small print cotton and have it ready to sew in jiffy time, as witness the diagram. It shows you the few simple pattern pieces. The little tie-back belt holds the waist firmly in place . . . an ideal frock for day-in, day-out wear.

Pattern 9041 comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50. Size 36, 3¼ yards 35-inch; ⅝ yard contrast.

This pattern, together with a transfer pattern of decorative embroidery motifs that you can use on linens or frocks, 20 cents.

Send 10 cents extra for new Marian Martin Pattern Book. Complete style selection for all ages.

Send order to Boston Evening American, 21 Pattern Department, 232 West 18th st., New York 11.

Army Show Starts Brisk Bond Sale

Brisk ticket sales—with the "price" listed in terms of War Bonds—were reported at the Merchants National Bank and Kennedy's Men's Store today for the Army's stage extravaganza, the New England Sector War Bond Cavalcade, to be given at the Plymouth Theater one week from tomorrow.

In accordance with the location of seats, purchases of War Bonds from $25 to $1000 maturity value are required for obtaining tickets to the show, in which 75 soldiers and eight WACS take part.

The production will be made up of the favorite entertainment acts at New England Army posts and will include many dramatic sketches of military life overseas.

In the afternoon, Sunday, Jan. 23, a performance will be presented strictly for an audience in uniform. The evening showing, at which Maj.-Gen. Kenneth Blood, commander of the New England sector, will be present, is especially for the War Bond purchasers.

Another impetus to the Fourth War Loan drive in the Greater Boston region will be the gala "Back the Attack" program to take place Tuesday night at the Hotel Statler, under the auspices of the American Hotel Ass'n.

Some 800 campaign workers will be guests at the party, which will reach a climax with a coast-to-coast broadcast from the hotel ballroom, starting a half-hour after Tuesday midnight.

Such Hollywood stars as Vera Zorina and Alan Marshall, aided by Vaughn Munroe and Ted Straeter and their bands, will participate.

Bovine Plasma Test Success

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Treated blood from heifers and bulls as a substitute for human plasma in transfusion has been tried successfully in 26 cases, the British Medical Journal reported today.

A report by Dr. F. Ronald Edwards, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Liverpool, said, "bovine serum can be safe for man by destroying the antibodies by heating to 72 degrees centigrade while rendering the proteins uncoagulable with the addition of 0.2 per cent. formalin and ammonia."

Blood banks throughout Britain hitherto have provided a good supply, but the use of plasma is increasing rapidly and estimated future needs prompted the search for a substitute.

Huns First, Rats Next, Halsey Says

GREENVILLE, Del., Jan. 15 (AP)—Admiral William F. Halsey has a formula for victory.

"First polish off the Huns, then we'll get the equipment we need to polish off the yellow monkeys," the South Pacific commander, back on leave said at a press conference at the home of his sister, Mrs. Preston Lea Spruance.

A reporter asked whether the Japs are "tough" and Halsey replied:

"When they're well-fed and well-uniformed, they're tough like any other rat. When they're not well-fed and well-uniformed, they're easy to beat—like any other rat."

Prepare for Peace, G.O.P. Women Told

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS)—Former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes declared today America is "moving toward the crises of the peace as morally unprepared as, at Pearl Harbor, we were physically unprepared for war."

Hanes, at a luncheon meeting of the Women's National Republican Club, called upon Republican women throughout the nation to aid in selecting a Republican presidential candidate who is "more American than Republican," who wants so deeply to have America win that he would be "ready to have the party lose."

Then she poured him a cup of coffee.

55 Rioting Farmers Seek Jail Release

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Jan. 15 (AP)—At least a dozen of the 55 Butler County farmers who went to jail rather than ask for release on their own recognizance following indictments by a grand jury over a racial flareup, called for their lawyers today so they could get out of jail.

The farmers are charged with inciting to riot or kidnaping in connection with alleged ejection of four Negro families on Dec. 8 from a rural district occupied by white residents.

Youth in South End Welcome Center

Just like other sections of the city, the South End now has its own youth center following an enthusiastic meeting which filled to overflowing the auditorium at English High School.

Organization of the boys and girls of that district marked the sixth youth center to be opened under sponsorship of the Massachusetts Youth Committee, whose membership has done so much for Boston's 'teen-age youth.

As in previous openings, the major portion of the evening was devoted to letting the youngsters tell what they want in the way of recreational and educational facilities, and as usual their spokesmen came through with sensible suggestions.

Most startling idea of the evening was introduced by Enoch Williams, Jr., of English high school, who called for a course in jiu jitsu. Every boy in the room roared approval.

Nancy Chin of Abraham Lincoln school didn't go quite so far in presenting the girls' views, but she did call for sports of a strenuous nature "to build strong Americans."

Other members of the Student Committee were Philip C. Hajjar, Malidona Vassell, Bernice Freeman and Robert Hurwitz.

In a great measure responsible for the success of the opening were Walter A. Downey, headmaster of English High School, Louis A. McCoy, headmaster at Girls' High, and Principal William Cunningham of Abraham Lincoln School.

School Committeemen Joseph White, Daniel J. McDevitt and Chairman Dr. Patrick J. Foley were in attendance and promised the youngsters that everything in their power would be done to see that the facilities they requested are given them.

TO SING—In the Lecture Hall of the Boston Public Library tomorrow evening, Phyllis Scott (above), Framingham contralto, will give her first song recital under the direction of Mme. Louisa Tosi, nationally known voice teacher.

rustlings in the walls. It had the musty odor of a museum.

An elderly Boris Karlof guided us upstairs and unlocked a heavy oaken door with a key big as a policeman's billy. The door whimpered irritably, and a single, incadescent bulb revealed a high-vaulted, medieval vastness that could have housed a hockey game. It was like a scene in the third act of Arsenic and Old Lace—a veritable mausoleum of a room where the wild echoes went flying as the elderly call-boy dropped my steel helmet.

There were no bats, but the odor was reminiscent of my great-aunt Sally's elderberry wine-cellar, and the heavy, chenille portieres shrouding the windows, hung in stiff folds—an ideal place to hide the body.

"You're nicely fixed," observed Col. Vidmer with the trace of a leer.

And I was! A four-poster, canopied bed, large enough for a corporal's squad, stood in the midst of this vast chapel.

"Good place to write your stuff," suggested Col. Vidmer with the look of a male Mona Lisa. So it was—if I were S.S. Van Dine or Ellery Queen, experts of the murder mystery.

"Can I have a fire?" I inquired plaintively of the ancient porter, feeling that the flicker of red coals would lend a sense of companionship.

"There is no coallllll," said the uniformed Macbeth, in the tone of the burial service. It was thus I discovered that the rural British have no heat.

"Come along," chirped Richards Vidmer with false cheer, "We'll report at headquarters."

The one-eyed jeep picked its way cautiously through the blackened, narrow lanes to the outskirts of town, where a row of buildings stood silhouetted against the phosphorescent gloom.

Ah, Roasted Ham!

Beyond the sentry-guarded gate there were dim, unexpected vistas of broad lawn, railed off terraces and sculptured figures. It was barrack-barren inside, but brightly lighted, warm and full of fellowship. A savory odor of roasting meat came from below stairs, and my stomach, aesthetized by the wartime fare of London, gave a jack-knife jump.

"The mess is having an off-night," said Richard Vidmer, swivelling his expert nostrils. "We're having roast ham."

Ham—sweet, succulent wafers of Virginia sugar-cured ham. Honeysuckle and new-mown hay! Grandma saying Sunday grace! The bright odor of an applewood log-fire! Try the fragrance of roast ham on your olfactory nerves, friends, after a prolonged diet of stewed cardboard and boiled hay. No complaint, y' understand—for these Britishers are taking it with a cheerful puss.

It was cordial in the big mess hall, which was like the meeting place in a country town hall or a small college gym. The young officers served themselves, cafeteria style, from a food table, and sat at random.

The war seemed momentarily remote. Over yonder sat a familiar face above the silver oak leaves of a lieutenant-colonel—sure, Joe Stancook, the 1936 West Point football captain!

I hadn't seen Joe since our team of Boston football officials had pulled that historic boner at Cleveland in the Army-Illinois game. Did Joe remember? It was etched indelibly on his memory! It seemed a long way to come to dispute the technicalities of an old ball game, but the whole home-hungry mess gathered round to pick up the crumbs of gossip from a better day.

Date With Colonel

Upstairs there was a makeshift bar, like those seen in the Blind Tiger era of Volstead. White-coated mixers served the men in olive green their favorite brew.

It was 8:30 p. m. in England—but midafternoon in Boston—when our jeep driver appeared, saluted and asked Richards Vidmer, "Ready, sir?"

Ready for what? The dreaded return to the dank dungeon of the town tavern? Ready for the shifting shadows and imaginary chain-clanks of that morbid mortuary? Boy, page Edgar Allen Poe! There wasn't even a telephone through which to holler for help.

"I'll call for you at eight-thirty," said Richards Vidmer with a ghoulish grin. "Yes," I answered. "Be in time to pull the dagger outta my chest."

"Get off a good yarn," adjured Richards, as we parted at the blackened portals.

This is it—typed between taking speculative tappings on the oaken walls for the hollow sound of hidden passages. I have no neighbors, unless you count the things that rustle in the walls.

SCARLETT KELLY (no kin to the O'Haras) is one of the glamor queens in a company of 60 at Old Howard.

PATRICIA JOYCE, curvaceous beauty who bows to the burlesque fans at the Globe starting at midnight Sunday.

Patricia Joyce Globe Star, Scarlett Kelly at the Howard

Boston burlesque fans will find fine fare at the Old Howard where a new show featuring 60 persons opened at midnight Friday night, with Hub favorites as headliners.

Glamorous Scarlett Kelly, cool and capable, and the unpredictable Julie Bryan vie for top honors in the stripteuse department, while Frank Silk and Harry Levine lead the comics.

Among the vaudeville specialties are Peter Chen, Chinese novelty; Al Libby & Co.; Manya Alba, dancer, and Connie Ryan, singer.

The Globe offers a bang-up girl show starting tomorrow at midnight, with Patricia Joyce, the "cream in your coffee" girl, and chic Charlotte Vogue as top attractions. Red Marshall and Hap Hyatt, prime Hub favorites, head the comedians, with Johnny Cook as straight man.

Ramona Hughes, a dancer who has been acclaimed in Broadway night clubs, is among the vaudeville attractions, which also include Harry Mosco with his electric guitar and songster Jerry Varga.

At the Casino, the current show is billed as "Beauties On Parade." They include Frances White, Dawn de Lees, Tess Noel and Lola Martin, all highly popular with the connoisseurs.

'Suspicion' Heads Majestic Film Fare

Joan Fontaine and Cary Grant are the stars of "Suspicion," which is now playing at the Majestic Theater with "Is Everybody Happy" as co-feature.

"Suspicion" is a masterpiece of suspense, and is regarded as one of the finest films of the past year. Cary Grant plays a charming gambler who elopes with a plain-looking, unworldly girl who soon begins to doubt the wisdom of her marriage.

The President's National Service Law

THE DRAMATIC feature of President Roosevelt's third wartime message on "The State of the Union" was his demand that Congress enact a "National Service Law" to draft every able-bodied adult in the nation" for "war production or for any other essential service."

While Congress was receiving the Presidential message, the chairman of the Truman Committee of the United States Senate was also discussing the manpower question, and doing so with a good deal better understanding of the problem than the President was able to show.

Sen. Truman spoke before the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Ass'n in New York City.

Mr. Roosevelt's unexpected insistence upon a labor draft act—which, he confessed, "I have FOR THREE YEARS hesitated to recommend"—had AN EMERGENCY sound, as if war production were suddenly and perilously falling down for lack of hands.

"In such a time," the President said, "there can be no discrimination between the men and women who are assigned by the Government to its defense at the battle front and the men and women assigned to produce the vital materials essential to successful military operations.

"A prompt enactment of a National Service Law would be merely an expression of the universality of this responsibility . . .

"The national war program calls for the employment of more people in 1944 than in 1943."

But there was no such emergency note in Sen. Truman's report, based upon his committee's continuous studies of the war production situation.

THE MISSOURI SENATOR informed his auditors that, while the "manpower problem will continue as a serious one for the nation as a whole," the peak of the demand has been reached or approached.

In the immediate future, he said:

"MANY COMMUNITIES WILL FIND THAT IN THEIR AREA THEY WILL HAVE A MANPOWER SURPLUS.

"IN SOME COMMUNITIES THERE WILL EVEN BE A SERIOUS UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM."

This is due, of course, to the fact that the productive capacity of American industry is more than meeting the needs of global warfare, including the operations of Lend-Lease in supplying our Allies as well as the requirement of our own armed forces.

The MILITARY problem, therefore, is apparently one not of forced labor, but of getting the materials of war where they are most required—as, for example, to GEN. MacARTHUR IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

The rising PERSONNEL problem is one of re-distributing SURPLUS AVAILABLE LABOR to such regions as may still have TEMPORARY SHORTAGES, rather than including the entire adult population in a conscript army most of which could find NO POSSIBLE PLACE in war production enterprises.

Sen. Truman spoke emphatically on this point.

"WITHOUT ATTEMPTING TO PROPHESY THE TIME WHEN THE WAR WILL END," he said, "I CAN TELL YOU THAT THE PRODUCTION OF WAR MATERIAL IN SOME ITEMS HAS BEEN SO GREAT THAT ABOUT $6,000,000,000 OF ARMY CONTRACTS AND ABOUT $2,000,000,000 OF NAVY CONTRACTS HAVE BEEN CANCELLED.

"THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING OF SUCH CANCELLATIONS.

"ALMOST DAILY THE COMING YEAR YOU WILL SEE NEWSPAPER NOTICES OF CONTRACT CANCELLATIONS, OF PLANT SHUT-DOWNS, OF ELIMINATION OF GRAVEYARD SHIFTS, AND OF REDUCTION IN EMPLOYES."

Obviously, therefore, the manpower situation is NOT such as the Presidential message implied, and could not be helpfully affected by a National Service Law at this late hour.

THE REAL MOTIVE of the President's admitted belated suggestion is to be observed rather in his assertion that a National Service Law would, "for the duration of the war PREVENT STRIKES."

The National Service scheme is thus merely another fumble IN THE FIELD OF LABOR RELATIONS.

The Administration has consistently OPPOSED much less drastic legislation than a National Service Law to abate the war strike evil.

Its manipulative and political methods of dealing with labor issues have produced an actual increase of work stoppages during the war period.

As a consequence of false policies, there is a virtual coal famine in the East; the railroads have been seized nominally by the Government; the "Little Steel" formula for fixing wages is gone; and a new steel crisis is impending. So Mr. Roosevelt asks for a "National Service Law."

Likewise, the New Deal's Price Control procedures have been only partly successful and have been frequently used for Socialistic purposes. At the same time, the Administration continues to harass industry and to penalize personal initiative with confiscatory and demagogic taxation.

WITH THESE MATTERS IN MIND, PLAINLY, MR. ROOSEVELT TELLS CONGRESS THAT HE WANTS A NATIONAL SERVICE LAW—BUT DOES NOT WANT IT UNLESS HE GETS ALSO A $10,000,000,000 TAX ACT AND VIRTUALLY AN UNLIMITED PRICE SUBSIDY PROGRAM TO MAKE POLITICAL HAY WITH THE FARMERS AND WITH LABOR.

The "message on the state of the Union" must be regarded as a POLITICAL DOCUMENT, reflecting merely the political requirements of the New Deal.

Great or good, or kind or fair,
I will ne'er the more despair;
If she love me, this believe
I will die ere she shall grieve;
If she slight me when I woo
I can scorn and let her go.
For if she be not for me
What care I for whom she be?
—GEORGE WITHER.

AN ASTONISHING number of young women seem to be in a "love 'em and leave 'em" mood these days. Even men in the armed forces now have "brush off" clubs for fellows whose girls have given them the go by. Under these circumstances it seems advisable that all bachelors try to adopt the philosophy of Mr. Wither as quoted above . . . When it stopped snowing out our way last night and the moon came out it made the neighborhood look just like a painting of a white Christmas. There wasn't a one-horse sleigh available or we would have gone jingle-belling all around the town. Before I leave this vale of tears I am going to spend at least one winter where they have one-horse sleighs, toboggan slides and bob-sledding.

BRIEFLY: Will war marriages last? That is a question discussed by an intense female writer in a magazine article. Much ado about nothing. Of course, most of the war marriages will last. Those of World War I lasted very well . . . The system of numbering breakfasts was originated by Angus MacDonald of the Southern Pacific Railroad. I don't know what the record for the number of numbered breakfasts is but I was in a place this morning that had 12 . . . A fact rarely mentioned in connection with the military order of the Purple Heart is that it gets its name from a type of wood used in gun carriages in our Revolutionary War.

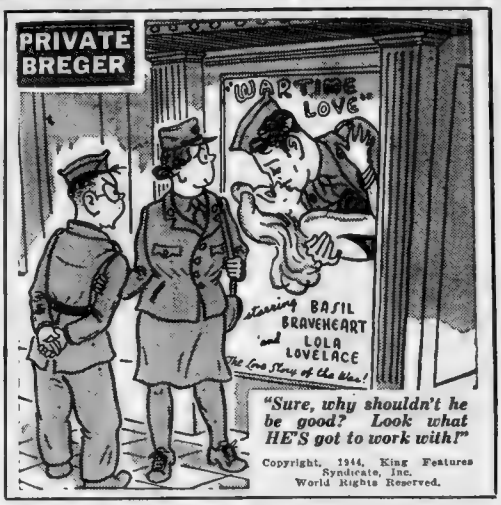
ASIDES: Mrs. Joseph Blesiada of Muskegon, Mich., 37 years old, has 10 living sons, the oldest being 13 and the youngest one year and a half. Sound's like the country's record for family of young sons . . . Am still hearing from a lot of men in the armed forces all over the world. Today I heard from a captain who formerly wrote me from the desert in North Africa Now he is in the jungles of the Southwest Pacific. He certainly is seeing a lot of action.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q. How about the answer to that problem of the ages of Ike and the monkey? The suspense is killing us. A. I figure the monkey is 37 and Ike is 63. They must be an interesting pair of companions! Q. Tell me what boxer fought for both the bantamweight and heavyweight championship of the world or send me a stogie by return mail? A. I think it was Georges Carpentier! Q. What do you think of kippered herrings for breakfast? A. Every man to his taste. As for me, I don't like kippered herrings. Only one kind of fish I will consider for breakfast is codfish cakes with a little bacon on the side.

TYPEWRITING TESS: The young women pounding typewriters in plane plants think they are helping to win the war, too, and that all the publicity should not be given to the girls who are doing riveting, welding, etc. Rosemary Martin of Lockheed has written the following in behalf of the hard working typewriter pounders:

Riveting Rosie is doing her share, that I'll admit
Though her sweaters are tight and her slacks never fit.
But how about Typewriting Tess?
With a torch in her hand and a mask on her face
Winnie the welder is helping win the stakes.
But why should Rosie and Winnie get all the breaks?
How about Typewriting Tess?
So here's to the gal with hips getting gradually broader,
To the gal building planes in a dress,
Give her a hand, stand up and cheer
The gal called Typewriting Tess.

ROOSTERS: An anti-rooster law. That's what Los Angeles has. It is against the law in that city to keep a rooster in any place that is less than 100 feet from a neighbor's bedroom window. If that law prevents a rooster from keeping a man awake, the Los Angeles roosters must have very weak lungs. A good healthy rooster can toss a sleep disturbing line of crowing at least 100 yards. Nevertheless, this anti-rooster law is a step in the right direction. Maybe after the rooster noise problem is settled they will start working on the loud radio players.



"Sure, why shouldn't he be good? Look what HE'S got to work with!"

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday — I was interested yesterday in talking with Mr. Edwin McArthur, who has just returned from a tour of duty in the Southwest Pacific for USO camp shows. This organization is doing a most magnificent job.

As I hear more and more of the artists who have gone out for them, I realize that they are not only giving something to the men which is of great value at present, but in many cases, they are doing an educational job which will be of value to the soldiers when they come back. For they will have an added appreciation of the arts in their daily lives

MR. McARTHUR HAD BEEN a director at the Metropolitan, but for this trip he took some lessons on the accordion, and that was the instrument which accompanied him on his travels. Instead of a symphony orchestra, he had one assistant. Their object was to bring out talent as they found it in soldier groups, and to entertain all branches of the service wherever they might be. Also, to sing together and to enjoy special contributions which members of their own group might offer during an informal evening.

★ ★ ★

Last night I attended a panel discussion at Howard University on the subject of what the Negro can do to better racial relations in America. These young students were very honest. They thought up quite a program for themselves, ranging from a better behavior campaign to better preparation for the jobs which they want to do, so that it will be increasingly difficult to deny them opportunities because of the outstanding quality of their work.

Hollywood . . . . By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15—When Boris Morros said he had some surprises up his sleeve for "Of Thee I Sing" he wasn't kidding! Today he blotted the ink on contracts calling for Jack Benny and Fred Allen to co-star in the George Kaufman-Morrie Ryskind musical.

If you ask me, this is a deal that is a deal. The combination of Benny and Allen, two of our greatest comedians, should knock box-office records high, wide and handsome.

Katharine Hepburn

I have a hunch only a picture as big as this would bring Fred Allen back to Hollywood soon. He was out here not long ago, supposedly to do a picture with Jack Skirball, but the script wasn't up to Allen's par and he went back to his radio show in New York. He returns for the Morros job within 60 days and will do his broadcasting from here.

★ ★ ★

KATHARINE HEPBURN is using all her wiles to persuade Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to buy Eugene O'Neill's play, "Mourning Becomes Electra." Katie has other ideas, too. She would like to have Greta Garbo play the mother. The two roles are almost equal in importance.

MITCH LEISEN, who spends more on his movies than almost any director since the gilded days of Erich von Stroheim and Cecil B. De Mille, has the bright idea he would like to do a modernized version of "Carmen." Of course Billy Rose had the idea, too, in New York's hottest show (with an all-Negro cast), "Carmen Jones." But "Carmen" is in public domain, which means all producers have an equal crack at it, so there's no reason why Mitch couldn't modernize it too. The reason I said Leisen's movies cost plenty is because his "Lady in the Dark" and "Frenchman's Creek" had terrific budgets.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Helen Forest, former songbird with Harry James' orchestra, obtained her final divorce decree in Baltimore this week. She was married to Al Spielglass, a drummer, and only a few people knew of this marriage. She won't be free long, for come the second week in February she'll marry Eddie Hall, Paramount actor. He has already sent her a star sapphire ring.

THERE WAS a rumor from London printed a few days ago in one of the trade papers that David Selznick had loaned Vivien Leigh to Alexander Korda for "Lottie Dundas." David emphatically denies he has any deal with Korda. He says, on the contrary, he has made arrangements with Arthur Rankin of British General Films, Ltd., to star Miss "Scarlett O'Hara" in George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: When Lieut. John Kennedy was here, he made it a point to see Angela Greene, a girl he had known and liked in New York; Barry Sullivan is walking the streets. His house was sold right from under him. That's happened to many people in Hollywood; Carole Landis spent her first evening home from New York dining at the Mocambo with her ex-husband, Willis Hunt, and his present wife, Elyse Curtis; the Charles Feldmans gave a dinner for Lorelle and Bill Hearst and it was a very nice affair, arranged within a few hours. The Jack Warners, Louis B. Mayer, Joseph Schenck, Doris Merrick, Ben Thau and Francis Gifford were gathered around the festive table.

Star Shine By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15—Walter Pidgeon told this story about himself and Clark Gable to a group of Metro people. It happened just a few years back when Clark Gable was the top male player at the studio (as he still is) and Walter Pidgeon was trying to make a name for himself and get a contract there. Pidgeon was assigned to a supporting role in a Gable picture. The assistant director said to Pidgeon: "Find out what suits Gable is wearing in the various scenes, and then you wear just the opposite color so you won't conflict." Therefore, if Gable was wearing a light suit in a scene, Pidgeon would have to wear a dark one.

Ann Sheridan

Pidgeon phoned Gable, introduced himself and explained why he had called. Gable then said: "Listen, Metro is my home studio. I have a dressing room there and my wardrobe is there. You wear whatever suit you like and when we get on the set and if we find that our suits clash I'll go to my dressing room and change my suit."

★ ★ ★

VISITORS TO the sets these days are mostly Army and Navy men. Every soldier, sailor and marine, regardless of rank, when they are in Hollywood wants to visit a movie studio. Every celebrity who comes to town, it appears, is a movie fan. It depends upon the importance of the person as to who guides him about the sets. If it is a Senator or a Joseph P. Kennedy, a Buddy de Sylva or Jack Warner will personally guide him about the studio, and the guest will have lunch in the private dining room. He will receive what is known as the "A" tour.

Other celebrities of less note, but still important, get the "B" tour. The publicity chief or one of his trusted aides will take this guest about.

The "C" tour is for a quick look-see around the studio, and the visitor is usually guided by a messenger girl—which isn't bad.

★ ★ ★

LORD HALIFAX, when escorted about Warners, just asked one question: "Is there really an Ann Sheridan?" Miss Sheridan wasn't working that day and Lord Halifax' tour was not a complete success.

Usually business men are interested in the part of the studio which has some relationship to their business. For instance, Max Pincus, President of Reliance Steel, was amazed at the "steel" ship hulls and fences that were made out of wood.

Boston After Dark

EXCLUSIVE: THE STRONG RIGHT HAND OF DAVID NILES, the Bostonian who became "assistant president," is set at this very minute to throw a punch calculated to knock Kenneth Backman, OPA regional director in Massachusetts, so far back on his heels that he will never rise under the Roosevelt administration to a sitting position again . . . Larry Bresnahan, ousted head of OPA civilian defense and assorted other federal activities in this sector, will be Mr. Backman's successor, if the Niles' plans work out—as they probably will . . . The significance of the proposed switch of OPA heads is this: Niles definitely is left-wing, and so is Harry Hopkins, his sponsor . . . The Roosevelt report to the nation was so leftish that it made optimistic predictions that the whole kit and kaboodle of the Washington troupe now holding high office had turned to the political right seem silly.

ABOUT JANE PICKENS, now successfully attracting throngs to the Copley Plaza's Oval Room . . . Jane has so much talent that her admirers have become acolytes . . . But her act, as now presented, is so wrong for her that it is sad . . . Miss Pickens made her worst mistake, from the standpoint of her career, when she saw Hildegarde . . . There is only one Hildegarde, praise be . . . In the place of the winsome, charming, talented, appealing Jane Pickens of the past, we find now under her name and in her person—in this opinion—a strident, self-assured, dominating character in a studied presentation of some songs that are haunted, from the start, by a tremendous grand piano that doesn't get played by Miss Pickens—as we know it eventually will—in time to save her show . . . Jane can play a piano with the best of them . . . She actually has a man's touch . . . She can sing, too, (with the second-best of them) . . . These two accomplishments should be enough . . . They always have been . . . She should continue to be the Jane Pickens we love, instead of the affected caricature of her own sweet self that one sees now at the Copley Plaza.

THE SPORTSMEN'S SHOW turned thousands away in its first night . . . The surge of customers was so tremendous, notwithstanding the 7200 seating capacity of the Boston Arena allowed under the new regulations, that even the astute Sheldon H. Fairbanks, boss of the show, was amazed . . . The 20th annual version of Boston's favorite outdoor-show-indoors is playing five days only, which calls for a Tuesday closing in Boston . . . The ropes are out at the Music Box, and capacity in the "miracle spot" of Copley sq. will be the order of the winter when John Costello announces his new bill of entertainers . . . Billy Payne, we hear, will open on Monday . . . EXCLUSIVE: E. M. Loew, according to strong reports, has taken over the Alpine, the capacious restaurant in Warrenton st. . . . He plans to make it a de luxe nightclub.

SOME STARTLED Bostonians got their first view and taste of such Chinese delicacies as shark's fin soup, bird's nest soup and Lotus bud soup, at the dinner Ruby Foo gave her physician, Lieut. Jack Ilite, U. S. C. G., at The Den . . . The shark's fin brew is spectacular, resembling shredded cellophane and tasting somewhat as this untiated palate imagines cellophane would taste . . . Contributing to the rarity of this delicacy, and its standing as a rarity in these days, is the immense labor which goes into its preparation, Miss Foo was saying . . . Each shred of the shiny shark's fin must be taken off the fin by hand . . . But that bird's nest dish is really something . . . And the old Chinese custom of serving soup as a last course is an interesting one . . . The final course is a very sweet concoction and long noodles, symbolic of the host's prayer that a guest may enjoy a long life, are in each serving.

Salvage Tips by Revere JVA

New reports on waste fats, paper and other salvage collections, together with morale building activities, were received during an hour's business session of the "MacArthur Quaker Wing Comrades" Corps of the Junior Victory Army in Revere last night.

The corps' war work has been helped through contribution of an office on Foster st., near Broadway, and a garage for salvage collections by Mayor Raymond Carey and by donation of large pails for waste fats by Al Gardner, fish dealer.

The corps' sponsor is Lila O. Annis and the captains include Paul McCarrick, Mary Barry, John King, Esther Annis, Frankie Weeks and William Goddard. Paul McCarrick painted the cans green with JVA lettering.

New members are Bernice Pizano, Mary Pashby, Pauline Annis, Daniel Lawson and Constance Miller. John Miller, Jr., is mascot.

Half the proceeds from the sale of fats goes for war bonds and the remainder toward an emergency hospitalization fund for the 101 members, the sponsor says.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Sunday's Boston Advertiser.

Egan as Hockey Storm Center Is Ross' Plan

By JACK CONWAY

DESPITE THE temporary loss of Bill Cowley, the Bruins are expected to win from the Rangers in their game at the Garden tonight . . . Pat Egan is eager to make a good showing in his first appearance on the ice as a member of the Rossmen in the skirmish against the New York outfit.

Egan was at the Garden late yesterday afternoon practicing . . . It was the first opportunity he had to work out since arriving here . . . The big fellow made the most of his chance to get on the ice . . . Pat is overweight and needs plenty of practice . . . Actual competition in league games, however, will do more to sharpen up Egan than anything else.

Bill Cowley

Art Ross secretly hopes to instill Egan with sufficient fire to make him a hockey figure around whom there will be considerable controversy . . . Ross has lacked such a player since Eddie Shore ended up with the Bruins . . . Egan has the physical build and personality to become a storm center in Boston . . . The Ross touch is all that is needed.

Frank Ryan, publicity director of Suffolk Downs and the Bruins, is en route to Boston by train from Miami . . . Frank originally had plane reservations, but they were taken over by the Army . . . President Charles F. Adams of Suffolk Downs is still in Florida . . . He will start for Lexington, Ky., next week to look over the 12 yearlings he purchased for the racing stable of his son, Lieut. Weston W. Adams . . . He will then come to Boston.

It is almost a certainty that the Massachusetts racing commission will eliminate the silly rule that prevents a person interested in the ownership of a race horse from having his thoroughbred compete at his own track . . . If owners of race tracks are not the type of men who would see that their thoroughbreds give their best efforts, they should not be permitted to have anything to do with the turf sport.

Garden Sellout Due

THE RECENT charges following Bill Cowley's shoulder injury in Toronto, will result in a sellout when the Maple Leafs invade the Garden next Tuesday night to clash with the Bruins . . . Cowley will be unable to play and he will probably remain in Toronto until he is ready to get back into action . . . You may be sure that each of the Bruins will be in there taking a shot at the Maple Leaf's cage for Cowley.

The Maple Leafs and the Rangers have been the best attractions against the Bruins at the Garden over a period of years . . . Tommy Waters calls my attention to the fact there has not been a big snowstorm on the night of a Bruins game at the Garden in recent years.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, plans to leave South Bend for Florida the latter part of the month . . . He will remain in Florida until late in February . . . In Leahy's absence, Ed McKeever will carry on in the athletic department at Notre Dame . . . It will be necessary for Leahy to build an almost entirely new eleven for '44.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox has given the green light for 1944 football at colleges that have Navy trainees . . . Knox has found that contact sports, like football do much to put the trainees in condition for warfare, while the games also furnish healthy recreation for thousands of service men.

★ ★ ★

Random Shots at Target

THERE IS AN acute liquor shortage in the mid-West . . . Liquor is rationed in some states . . . It is impossible to purchase scotch or rye in Ohio . . . The bigger Boston night clubs have two years' supply of choice liquors . . . Some of the owners of Boston bright spots purchased big blocks of American Distilling stock in order to get a part of the liquor melon that was given to stockholders.

Hotels and restaurants, as well as every means of transportation, are doing a big business in the mid-West . . . The person who travels without reservations experiences many headaches . . . The WAVES have moved into the offices of the naval units at Notre Dame . . . There were 20 WAVES in the first group that reported at South Bend . . . The WAVES are quartered at the Oliver Hotel, which is one of the leading hotels at South Bend . . . They have taken over an entire floor.

Rajah to Coach Mexican Team

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15 (AP)—Jorge Pasquel, president of the Vera Cruz Club of the Mexican Baseball League, said last night that Rogers Hornsby, one of the United States' baseball immortals, would manage his team during the coming season.

"Hornsby is on his way here to sign a contract," said Pasquel. "He is due here Wednesday."

At the same time, Delfino Perez, part owner of the Puebla Baseball Club, said he hopes to get Adolf Luque, manager of the Havana Club and trainer of the New York Giants, to manage his club.

Rangers Even Bet To Beat B's Tonight

By BILL GRIMES

Strengthened by the acquisitions of Kilby Macdonald, Hank Damore, Bob Dill and Jimmy Jamieson, the New York Rangers are an even bet to knock off the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden.

Kilby Macdonald, a former Ottawa and northern Ontario player, was the outstanding rookie in the N. H. L. with Rangers during the 1939-40 season, winning the Calder Cup. The next two years due to stomach trouble, he slumped and was sold to Hershey in 1941-42, which club passed him along to Buffalo. In 1942, Macdonald enlisted in the Canadian army and played with the Montreal army club. Recently, Macdonald was discharged from the army and naturally reverted to the Bison City team.

AT GARDEN

BOSTON	NEW YORK
Cain, rw	lw, Hiller
A. Jackson, c	c, Heller
Guidolin, lw	rw, Hextall
Clapper, rd	ld, Dill
Egan, ld	rd, W. McDonald
Gardiner, g	g, McAuley

Boston Spares—Boll, Calladine, H. Jackson, Palazzari, Kopak, Rittinger, Labrie.

New York Spares—Mahaffy, Aubuchon, Damore, K. Macdonald, De Marco, Gordon, Jamieson.

Game starts at 8:30.

Mgr. Lester Patrick recently closed a deal with Eddie Shore, who is the general manager of the Buffalo Bisons, for Kilby Macdonald. In return for Macdonald's services, Mgr. Patrick traded Herb Morey, Nester Lubeck and Spencer Patchell, three highly regarded amateurs, to Buffalo. Morey and Lubeck are now in the Canadian army.

RESPECT EGAN

However, the Rangers have high respect for Pat Egan, who will make his home debut tonight. Although he has drawn plenty of penalties against Rangers while playing for the Red Wings this season, Pat Egan scored two goals and was credited with four assists.

The Bruins held their first practice session in nine days yesterday at the Garden. They worked out for more than an hour under the watchful eye of Mgr. Art Ross.

Due to the loss of Bill Cowley and Don Gallinger, Mgr. Ross was obliged to shake up his forward line combinations. He will start Art Jackson, who has been up and down from the first to the third line all season, at center ice, with Herbie Cain and Bep Guidolin on the flanks and his second line will comprise Norm Calladine, as the play maker, with Busher Jackson and Buz Boll on the wings.

ALL OLYMPIC LINE

In the event that he isn't satisfied with the performances of his first and second lines, Mgr. Ross will not hesitate to make a few alterations.

The third line will be an all Olympic trio, Al Palazzari, Rus Kopak and Alan Rittenger. Tommie Brennan received the nod from Ross earlier in the week but the boss man of the Bruins cut back yesterday and grabbed Rittenger to right wing on the third line.

The Bruins will jump over to New York tomorrow to play the Rangers in Madison Sq. Garden and will return Monday to rest up for Tuesday night's tilt with the battling Toronto Maple Leafs, who have beaten them in the last two games and also put Jack Crawford and Bill Cowley on the hospital list.

Penn-Cornell Grid Game Date Changed

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15 (INS)—The annual Penn-Cornell football game, traditionally held on Thanksgiving Day, will be played on the Saturday following Thanksgiving this year, H. Jamison Swarts, director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, announced today.

TIPPY SCORES—Tippy Larkin, right, gets through Bobby Ruffin's guard to score a neat right hand sock, in New York's Garden. The fight, a slugging match, went 10 rounds to a draw.

Referee's Vote Gives Larkin, Ruffin Draw

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Lightweights Tippy Larkin and Bobby Ruffin fought a savage 10-round draw before 15,323 (gross gate $41,964) at Madison Square Garden last night, but perhaps the real surprise of the evening was the clamming up of Maurie Waxman.

Waxman, Ruffin's manager, usually talks a blue streak. He barged into the dressing room after the scrap as Ruffin, obviously disgusted with the decision, was about to tell reporters what was in his mind.

"Wait a minute," yelled Maurie. "Come over here in the corner." They huddled for a minute, then Ruffin said: "Okay, we'll be diplomatic. It was a great fight, boys, and I'm ready to go into a greater one." It was Ruffin's last fight before entering the Army Jan. 26.

LARKIN NEAR KO WIN

While Ruffin thought he had won, Larkin of Garfield, N. J., was just as positive he deserved the decision over the New Yorker who upset Champion Beau Jack last fall and recently dropped a split 10-rounder to Sammy Angott.

"I thought I won," Larkin said. "He hurt me a few times with his right-hand swings and he cut my eye by butting, but not enough to matter."

Larkin, who weighed 138¼ pounds to Ruffin's 136¾, had a two-round knockout in his grasp, but couldn't put over the kayo. Time and again in this round he put over the old one, two to Ruffin's chin, but Ruffin absorbed all the punches and kept coming in for more.

REFEREE VOTES DRAW

Judge Joe Agnello called Ruffin the winner by six rounds to four. Judge Bill Healy gave it to Larkin by the same score, while Referee Young Otto gave each five rounds.

Larkin, who fights Izzy Jannazzo in Boston next week, now is in line for a Feb. 9 meeting in the Garden, possibly with Lulu Costantino.

Yule Hostess Asks Ted About Old Feud

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Approved by Office of Public Relations, U. S. Navy. Copyright, 1944, by Boston Sunday Advertiser-American

PENSACOLA, Fla. (delayed)—Christmas Day. Contemplating a fishing trip on the Escamba river with Ted Williams, I had been dreaming of a damp Christmas. But nothing like this. It was, as the bellhop said, "Rainin' cats and dogs, suh" and I kept looking out the window expecting to see canine Scuttlebut come tumbling down from the clouds.

A squib in the Pensacola paper had mentioned my arrival, and invitations to Christmas dinner had come hurriedly from Lieut. Alex Welch, old Boston University hurdler, attached to the main base, and from Russ Scarritt, Sox left fielder in Bill Carrigan's second regime. Many thanks. But I had to see Ted Williams. This would be his only free day.

Gee, an awful day to travel to Squfley Field, some 10 miles distant. Let's call Ted and see if he won't come in. At least he's got a raincoat.

DINNER AT TOOGIE'S

"Didn't you hear from Toogie?" asks Ted. "We're going out to his house for dinner."

"Toogie" is Lieut. Forrest Twogood, and his invitation is in the mail box. He's an old University of Iowa boy who southpawed for Cleveland in '31, hurt his arm and went back to the Coast League. He had known Ted as a kid in San Diego. He lives at 1220 Wilson, in Warrington, and we're out there at noon.

It's a chummy, comfortable bungalow, and it's nice to get in out of the rain. Toogie has a roaring log fire going. Mrs. Toogie is the perfect hostess. The living room is dotted with pictures of U. S. C. celebrities — Lieut.-Comdr. Sam Barry, head football coach after Howard Jones' death; Lieut. Julie Biscos, assistant football and basketball coach; Gus Shaver, all-America halfback at U. S. C. 10 years ago, and Jess Cravath.

Guests are Lieut.-Comdr. Potsy Clark who is stationed at the main base, and his two daughters, Mary and Jane. There is a Lieut. Chips Jones, a football coach from South Boston but which Southie happens to be in Virginia, and Mrs. Chips.

HOW MAHAN WAS HALTED

Potsy has the floor as we come in, and he's telling how his 1918 football team beat Eddie Mahan's eleven in France and how they stopped the Harvard immortal seven times running without gain of a foot—telling why the Navy favors competitive athletics and why outstanding athletes make great fliers—he points out Tom Harmon for an example, giving credit to Harmon's competitive experience and his durable legs for twice having saved himself in the jungles of South America and the rice bowl of China, behind the Japanese lines.

But with Mr. and Mrs. Toogie, a baseball wife, and Williams in the gathering, football can't remain the subject long. Toogie throws another log on the fire, throws left leg over arm of chair, quaffs the cup that cheers and takes the play away from Potsy. This is Christmas, a holiday for all, and everybody, regardless of rank, is on equal footing—for the day.

Toogie tells how Mace Brown used to be his catcher at University of Iowa—yeh, in Denny Myers' time . . . how Mace couldn't hit a lick but had such a great arm, Coach Otti Vogel made him a pitcher, and wasn't that the luckiest break Mace ever got in his life . . . "Couldn't have happened to a better fellow," they all agreed . . . Joe Mowry (Braves), also was with Iowa at the time.

UMPIRE FAINTED

Talk of the Big Ten and the Coast League and of daffy Duster Mails, who set off a skyrocket at first base one day, and when the umpire remonstrated walked over, took a gun out of his pocket and "shot" the ump with a water pistol. Umpire fainted on the spot, believing he was actually killed.

Toogie got up to mix a libation for his guests, and Mrs. Toogie came in from the kitchen where she had been basting the turkey.

"Ted," she said so sweetly that the .406 kid couldn't take offense, "I've been reading where you don't get along with newspapermen. I think a young chap in your position, with your future, is making a mistake antagonizing them. They can help you."

Naval aviation cadet Ted Williams can be a very dignified young man when occasion warrants, especially in the company of officers, and without raising his voice he answered: "Okay, you asked for it. I'll give it to you. They write about your family, they write about your girl," and he was off in a cloud of dust.

Ted Williams reveals in full for the first time, in his own words, the story of his feud with the newspaper writers. Read this thrilling episode of "Ted Williams wants a Zero," exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Golf Big Help To War Effort

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Golf playing during 1943 was only 28 per cent below that of pre-Pearl Harbor 1941, despite the shortages of equipment, caddies and traveling facilities, the executive committee of the USGA reported today.

The report, highlight of the association's 15th annual meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria, revealed that membership dropped from 758 clubs a year ago to 703, but that 27 other clubs joined the public links division.

CUT LOSSES

The almost-static conditions enabled the association to cut its losses to $6951.43 for the year after suffering a setback of $17,816.32 in 1942 when national tournaments were dropped for the first time because of the war. There still is a surplus of $65,065.56, however.

Four hundred and eighty three reporting clubs raised $174,408 during 1943 for war charities with club tourneys and sold $8,548,920 in war bonds. Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, golfing-radio artists, were given special recognition for their help in the latter venture.

Individually, the clubs also aided the war effort. The Plum Hollow Club of Detroit donated $36,000 to the Red Cross after being host to the PGA Ryder cup-challenge matches; a nine-hole course was built for the Valley Forge Veterans' Hospital with funds raised by Philadelphia golfers and 9241 free rounds were played on the Long Beach, Cal., recreation park course by enlisted men.

AID SAILORS

The latter organization also raised $1020. to purchase golf equipment for a nearby naval hospital.

Morton G. Bogue of Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., was the only selection for president offered by the nominating committee and his election, succeeding George W. Blossom, Jr., of Lake Forest, Ill., is a formality.

Braves to Train At Choate School

The Boston Braves announced today through Pres. Bob Quinn that the Choate School facilities at Wallingford, Ct., again will be used as a spring training site for the team.

The ballplayers will stay at the school from March 13 to April 5. Between then and April 15, when they return to Boston to begin the annual three-game series with the Boston Red Sox, the Tribe will engage in exhibition games in the Mid-Atlantic and New York areas, Quinn said.

Family Groups Pace Derby

If daddy doesn't win, junior or sister may, which is another way of saying that the ninth renewal of the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Silver Skates Derby at Boston Garden, two weeks from Sunday may turn into a family-affair.

For at this early date, five family groups are represented among the entries. There are three Broadhursts, Jane, Frank and Alfred of Roslindale; three Danes of Revere, Chester, Edgar and Mary; Woburn's three McDonoughs, Jacquelyn, Mariylin and Carol Ann; Juliet and Paul Gobiel of Biddeford, Me., also Constant Lambert, Sr., and Constant, Jr., of Lawrence.

The "team" likely to enjoy the most success is the Broadhursts. Jane, youngest of the trio, won the midgets' event last year, while Frank boasts two Silver Skates titles. Alfred, only non-title winner of the family, says he is "due" this year and feels confident they will make a clean sweep two weeks from Sunday.

RIVALRY OF CLANS

However, the Derby is always filled with intense rivalry and past performances are often upset, so don't be surprised if one of the other clans wins across the board.

A galaxy of former Silver Skates stars will be making return engagements. Among these are little Sandylee, Weillie of the Skating of Boston, who proved a sensation last year; Jane Weiss, brilliant figure skater, from Walpole; Patty Sonnekson, Colorado Springs; Kay Lindstrom, Belmont and a host of others.

Connecticut's first entry came through Joe Vailonis of Hartford, and if precedent means anything, the Nutmeg Stater should emerge with a prize.

Rita Curtin of Waltham files her blank with high confidence. In a separate note to Chairman Ben Levias, she says, "I'll win. You watch." Rita, a great little competitor will compete in the intermediate class.

Among the latest entries to arrive are:

Jean Nelson, Dorchester; Leonard Geary, Arlington; Rudy Jay, South Boston; Joe Vailonis, Hartford, Ct.; Harold Nathanson, Roxbury; Myron Rosen, Brookline; George A. Norton, Ruland Heights; L. Ronald Sislane, Jr., Dedham; Buddy Sonnenheib, Malden; Mary, Chester and Edgar Dane, Revere; John Fell, Boston; Christina Victor, Boston; Rita F. Curtin, Waltham; Charles Desjardins, Salem; Lorenzo DuPont, Meriden, Ct.; Patsie McCormick, Georgetown; Virgil Parent, South Boston; Thomas J. Leahy, Salem; Harold T. Lambert, Needham Heights; Josephine Vitale, East Boston; Jacquelyn, Maryiin and Carol Ann McDonough, Woburn; Robert Alexander, East Boston; Wesley Baker, Jr., Wilmington; Robert Keith, Cambridge; Marvin Rosen, Brookline; David H. Greene, Boston, and Russell Bates, Roslindale.

Fort Devens Five Wins

FORT DEVENS, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Fort Devens reception center basketball team scored its twelfth victory in 13 starts by defeating the Seabee quintet from Camp Endicott, R. I., 55-52. The game was a nip-and-tuck battle from start to finish.

Bertelli Keen For Hub Team

HOLYOKE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Holyoke Transcript-Telegram today quoted Angelo Bertelli, star Notre Dame half-back, as saying he was through with the college game and planned to play professional football after the war.

"I've gotten everything I could out of college football," Bertelli said in an interview while visiting his mother and sister prior to reporting to the Marine Officers' Training School at Quantico, Va., "but I definitely will finish the second semester of my senior year after the war, either at Notre Dame or some other school. Then I will play professional football, preferably in the East.

"I would like to play for the Boston Yanks if the pro league rules permit it," the sharpshooting forward passer declared.

Hub, Brookline Clubs In Curling Tourney

MT. HOPE, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP)—St. Andrews, the host club, and the Ardsley Curling Club each retained three rinks in competition at the end of the first day's matches for the Douglas medal at the indoor rinks. Boston, Hartford, Mahopac and The Country Club of Brookline, Mass., also were represented as the field was reduced from 19 to 10.

Utica's two entries and one from Schenectady were defeated today but will compete in the consolation round for the Larry Griffith medal starting today. Competition ends tomorrow.

Sinatra Buys Tami's Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS)—Tami Mauriello, the Bronx heavyweight who currently is rated No. 2 among the big boys in the boxing game, had a new manager today—none other than his longtime friend and admirer, Frank Sinatra, of swoon-croon fame.

Sinatra, it was understood here, paid $10,000 for Mauriello's contract. He is in Hollywood, and news of his advent into the beak-busters' league developed during a telephone call from promoter Mike Jacobs' office here.

Old Town Chief Extolls Sockalexis at Sports Show

Sockalexis is the most famous name in Penobscot Indian lore, and none knew Ball Player Louis or Marathoner Andrew any better than Chief Needahbeh, Old Town, Me., lecturer now in his 18th year with the Sportsmen's Show.

Between acts at the Arena the ageless Indian ("He hasn't changed a bit in 18 years," said Sheldon Fairbanks) extolled the athletic prowess of his childhood friends.

"Louis could throw a ball or rock farther than any man that ever lived," the chief insisted. "Sheldon Lejeune's major league record of 428 feet or George Washington's feat of scaling a silver dollar across the Rappahannock were juvenile accomplishments compared to Louis.

"I clearly remember him as a youngster picking up a rock and throwing it out of sight, and though I wasn't an eyewitness Old Town history says he threw a baseball from Old Town's mainland to the island (Indian reservation)."

TOO MUCH TO GARGLE

"But you must remember that the island is lower than the mainland," cautioned the Chief, who speaks in revered tones of the talented Indian, for whom the Cleveland A. L. club is supposed to have been nicknamed.

"When he was with Cleveland (1898) everybody agreed he had the strongest and most accurate arm in history. He played deeper than most outfielders, yet his ball never 'took a rainbow.' I've heard Ed Barrow and other old timers say that no matter what part of the field he threw from the ball never went more than 10 feet above the ground."

"He could hit, too," the Chief continued. "Jesse Burkett was the big shot with Cleveland at the time, and he used to be very jealous of Louis' batting. In fact I honestly believe the expression 'sock' came from Louis' batting."

H. C. TO HONOR STAR

"I had a small memorial erected in his honor on the island some years back," said the Chief earnestly, "but it isn't worthy of Sockalexis.

Was Andrew any relation to Louis? Were they contemporaries?

"Distant relations," said the Chief, "but Andrew came along some 10 years later than his more famous cousin. I can recall as a youngster how the older Indians thought Andrew was 'a little off' as he manicured a running track out of the woods that fringed the island. He'd run, run all day long, and they couldn't understand why he was always running when there was more fun fishing, swimming or canoeing. But he knew what he was doing because he finished fourth in the 1912 Olympic Marathon at Stockholm, the year Jim Thorpe won both pentathlon and decathlon events there.

"Andrew had a most novel method of training," the Chief went on as he donned feathered headpiece preparatory to re-mounting the Arena platform. "He trained in cork boots that must have weighed five pounds. It is 2½ miles around the island, and Andrew would cover that distance four or five times a day in his heavy boots. His theory was when he ran without them he seemed to float. He was a great runner, and the marvel of it all is that he was threatened with tuberculosis as a child and started running only to strengthen his lungs."

The Chief mounted the Arena rostrum and introduced the log rollers, including petite and capable Marietta Terrill. He is an accomplished public speaker, a fly and bait caster, a master at archery among his numerous other talents. He keeps busy practically the year round, boosting the cause of the Penobscots in schools. He hopes to lecture in Boston schools soon, colleges and clubs. It was evident that no man could be so busy and have time for firewater.

"That's right," said the Chief later. "One of the last times I ever met Louis, he took a half-pint out of his pocket, drained it, uttered an oath and said, 'Kid, if you ever grow up and become a public figure, never touch a drop of liquor.'

TWO STARS AT SPORTSMEN'S SHOW—Miss America, Jean Bartel of Los Angeles, and Harry Perkins, New Hampshire guide, talk over the fine points of the show business.

Shaughnessy Denies Quitting Rumor

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15 (INS)—The University of Pittsburgh's football coach, Clark D. Shaughnessy, denied today that he was planning to resign and take a job with the Boston professional team.

His denial contradicted a persistent rumor that he was ready to quit.

Mary Sets Record

RUTHERFORD, Tenn., Jan. 15 (AP)—Mary Frances King, Rutherford High School basketball player who has averaged 35 points a game this season, set a new record against Kenton High. She accounted for 97 of her team's 103 points. Kenton made 21.

Catholic Ice Loop In Action Tonight

The Boston Skating Club will be the scene of the first expansion of schoolboy sports of the new year tonight when the Catholic Hockey League, comprised of six teams, will launch its first ice schedule with a trio of games—the opening tilt to start at 7 p. m.

Pairings will find Malden Catholic squaring off against St. Clement's of Somerville; St. Sebastian's tangling with St. Mary's of Waltham; and St. Patrick's of Stoneham colliding with Mission of Roxbury.

It's a near impossible task to install a favorite but everything points to domination of play falling to Malden Catholic and St. Sebastian's of Newton. Malden, a consistent leader in football, has had informal hockey teams at the school for the past 10 years, winning more than its share of contests, while the Newton outfit, under Coach Vin Murphy, was more than impressive in swamping Browne-Nichols, 14-0, earlier this week.

Brother Aquinas, C.F.X., and Coach Jack Walsh have a strong representation in the circuit in their Malden six, headlined by Charlie McGinley, a veteran center. McGinley will be working with the second line with George Christopher and John Hebert on the wings, an indication that Malden must have power to be able to gamble an experienced player in order to spread its strength. The first wave will have Dick Seibert centering for John Walsh and Paul Kelley.

St. Sebastion's starting line, apparently, is loaded. This trio of Ed Phillips, center; Jack Mulhern, left wing, and John Slattery, right wing, was responsible for nine of the Newton club's tallies against B-N with Phillips flipping five into the nets and Mulhern flipping on the red light four times.

Meanwhile, the GBI took over the Garden this afternoon with its usual four games. In these, Stoneham faced Arlington; Cambridge Latin battled Rindge Tech; Medford's undefeated team was threatened with the loss of league leadership against Melrose and Belmont tangled with Newton.

Jack Conway's column of sports appears every day in the Boston American.

Write Your Congressman Protesting Neglect of Discharged Veterans

Date _____

HON. _____

MEMBER OF CONGRESS,
CAPITOL BUILDING,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

I call on you to support legislation that will provide mustering out pay, clothing and hospitalization facilities for discharged service men immediately upon their return to civilian life.

I wish to register my protest against the neglect of wounded, disabled and mentally sick men of the armed forces who have been discharged without any provision for their care and treatment.

I petition you, as my representative in Congress, to do all in your power to see that those who fought and bled to preserve the American way of life will be assured the necessities of life upon their discharge from the armed forces.

This is urgent! Please act now!

Sincerely,

Brought Her Back—Called "the best damned pilot in the world" by one of his wounded gunners, Lieut. William Cely (wearing hat) of Texas looks through hole in wing of his torn Fortress, Frenesi, which he brought home from Tuesday's big raid on Germany. His co-pilot, Lieut. Jabe Churchill, is with him.
